There's something special about Stuttgart's city center. Two magnificent palaces watch over its lively shopping streets, and you're never more than a short stroll away from the extensive palace gardens dotted with sculptures, fountains and lakes. At the center of the city is Palace Square (Schlossplatz), lined by impressive porticoed buildings. Together with the parks, the baroque New Palace and the avant-garde facade of the art museum, it creates a unique setting that surprises and delights every visitor. Find out all about Stuttgart's fascinating cultural history on this charming city walk.
